LEAD|Turkey invites you to join us for a very special event
featuring internationally acclaimed author, educator and coach, Steve Barkley

Instructional Coaching

to develop

21st Century Skills

Two-Day Certificate Program

To be successful future citizens, today's students will need to be problem solvers and collaborators who can adapt and learn in continually changing environments. Many of today's classrooms and teachers will need to change how learning occurs for these skills and attitudes to be internalized. The coaching of instructional leaders can be essential to helping educators make these necessary changes.

LEAD|Turkey invites all instructional leaders to study, observe, practice and be coached by a leader in the field of coaching teachers - Stephen Barkley, the author of Quality Teaching in a Culture of Coaching and Instructional Coaching with the End in Mind. As with all of Steve's workshops, this promises to be an active, engaging, personalized training event, as Steve will shape the training to address the needs participants bring from their schools.

Using backwards planning design, Steve will provide a process for identifying the critical 21st century skills that leaders wish to focus on and then build the necessary student, teacher and leader/coach behaviors to achieve those outcomes. This training will also provide hands-on practice of the critical questioning and conferencing skills coaches need to be successful in their schools.

About LEAD|Turkey

LEAD|Turkey is a consortium of successful educators, administrators and business professionals from Turkey and abroad, who have been brought together by our passion and shared vision. Our mission is to build strong communities. We work with schools in Turkey to provide high-quality professional development programs, comprehensive coaching services, continuing education resources, and educational consulting that makes a lasting difference.

In each of our chosen fields, our advisory board members, partner organizations and consultants possess an array of competencies that can address immediate and long-term needs of any school – from one-on-one coaching to professional development and continuing education certification programs. As our name explains – Liderlik Eğitim Araştırma Dayanışma – we help leaders develop themselves and each other through a continuous process of assessment and education – learning together.
